	SECTION B
	Questions 51 to 55 carry ten marks each.
51.	Read the passage below and then answer, in full sentences, the questions that follow.
	Communication occurs when we exchange messages. Communication is complete when the sender sends the message to the receiver, and the receiver sends the feedback. The feedback is the response or reply. The message is sent through a channel or medium. The medium can be a letter, a telephone, radio or face to face.
	In the olden days, people used to receive messages late. There were no telephones or other quick means of delivering messages. It was just by word of mouth. A person called a messenger could walk or ride for a long distance just to deliver a message.
	Nowadays, things have been made easy. Modern technology has simplified means of communication.
	Although we still use letters, the quickest means of delivery is by use of faxes or the internet using electronic mails. Messages through the e-mail can be delivered within a second regardless of the distance.

Mobile telephones are now multi-purpose, that is, they have several uses. You can talk or send a message called the sms (short message service). You can also use the internet especially if you have a smart phone. People should communicate because it is a way of being in touch with one another.
